Looking Ahead

Managing Cell Phone Use for K-6 Students Suggestions and Resources for Families

As the Deans of Baden Academy Charter School, we understand the challenges of managing technology in today's digital age. For our students, ranging from kindergarten to sixth grade, setting healthy boundaries with cell phones is crucial. Here are some practical steps and resources to help:

1. Start with Clear Rules

- Establish screen time limits and device-free zones, like during meals and before bed.
- Discuss your family's expectations for technology use and revisit them as your child grows.

2. Use Built-In Parental Controls

- iPhones: Use “Screen Time” to set app limits, content restrictions, and downtime.
- Android: Try “Family Link” for monitoring activity, managing apps, and setting time limits.

3. Explore Trusted Resources

- Common Sense Media (commonsensemedia.org)
- ✓ Reviews of apps, games, and online content.
- ✓ Tips for age-appropriate device usage.
- ✓ Tools to balance screen time with offline activities.

4. Teach Digital Citizenship

- Encourage conversations about online safety and behavior.
- Remind students that their digital footprint matters.

5. Encourage Healthy Habits

- ♂ Promote non-screen activities like reading, playing outside, or hobbies.
- Be a role model by setting limits for your own screen time.

Together, we can guide our children to use technology responsibly and build skills for a bright future!
